Welcome

Kilmore's heritage continues to live through its community, buildings, parklands, landscapes, and institutions. The Taungurong people are the traditional owners of the land. They inhabited the fertile plains for thousands of years before the arrival of settlers, convicts and the establishment of government.

Discovered for European use in 1837 by the famous Overlander and pioneer of South Australia, Charles Bonney, Kilmore is believed to be Victoria's oldest inland town. Situated near a gap in the Great Dividing Range, it was a major stopover for miners and their families during the Gold Rush years. Today, Kilmore has developed into a vibrant lifestyle destination that is distinguished by its proud history, heritage, and culture. Within easy distance of the surrounding Mitchell Shire region's diverse food and dining scene, markets, wineries, galleries, walks, and attractions, it blends rural charm and urban convenience.
